In loksabha election in india eligible citizens vote for candidates from various political parties to represent their constituency in the lower house of parliament

The political party that wins the most seat nationally usually ferms the government and their leader become the prime ministers

People participate by casting their votes to representative and political party based on their policies, promises and track about the democratic process and the oppurunity to choose their representative

Some also had concern about issues goverance, economy

and social policies
